The qualified finance and business informatics specialist was most recently employed as a database marketing analyst at Kroschke sign-international GmbH, where he was able to build up extensive expertise in the field of data analysis during a staff development program and through participation in company-wide projects.

At dimedis Julian Cortemme is responsible for making comprehensive data available for use in the trade fair sector and for supporting trade fair customers with operational and strategic decision-making using FairMate Business Intelligence. By creating automated reports including visualizations, he works together with the customers to derive recommendation for action, advises them on the use of FairMate Business Intelligence and further develops the reporting system with the involvement of said customers.

Julian Cortemme, the new data analyst at dimedis, talks about FairMate Business Intelligence and his plans for the future: "FairMate Business Intelligence visualizes complex data and is thus the central information point for trade fairs. The product enables our customers to easily understand the data and collects relevant statistics and information from all connected FairMate modules and external sources in a data warehouse. With the aid of the specialist software Tableau, one of the largest platforms for the analysis and visualization of data worldwide, these complex data correlations are visualized in an appealing and user-friendly fashion. The trade fair staff from different departments thus receive the information that is important for their area of responsibility and are hence able to make well-founded decisions quickly. In this way, the trade fairs are able to collect a wealth of data and turn their findings into hard cash.

During my work I concentrate on using dimedis's own trade fair know-how as well as well as the customer's ideas in order to continuously further develop FairMate BI for our customers."
